

Barcamp Central Asia 2009 • 11.30.08

The first Barcamp Central Asia was held in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan. I have a reporter friend back in Bishkek who attended this Barcamp. It was a success, roughly 300 people attended. They are now planning a second Barcamp Central Asia to be held in Almaty, Kazakhstan, next April, 2009. I am considering attending this Barcamp though it would mean reviewing my Kazakh and Russian. It seems that the entire event was in Russian, the lingua franca of the region.

Below is the logo for Barcamp Central Asia 2009 and a brief presentation of the upcoming event. The first Barcamp Central Asia was held in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan. I have a reporter friend back in Bishkek who attended this Barcamp. It was a success, roughly 300 people attended. They are now planning a second Barcamp Central Asia to be held in Almaty, Kazakhstan, next April, 2009. I am considering attending this Barcamp though it would mean reviewing my Kazakh and Russian. It seems that the entire event was in Russian, the lingua franca of the region.

Below is the logo for Barcamp Central Asia 2009. Really nice. Almaty is the 'City of Apples'.

Tags: almaty, BarCamp, barcamp central asia, central asia, kazakhstan