

British Standards Institution

BSI Currency Code Service (ISO 4217 Maintenance Agency)

Welcome to British Standards

British Standards is the National Standards Body of the UK, responsible for facilitating, drafting, publishing and marketing British Standards and other guidelines.

With collaborative ventures and a strong national and international profile, British Standards is at the heart of the world of standardization.

British Standards provides UK industry and other stakeholders with their major access to and influence on standardization, both in the European arena (with CEN, CENELEC and ETSI) and internationally (with ISO and IEC).

A Brief History

In 1901 the Institutions of Civil Engineers, Mechanical Engineers, Naval Architects and the Iron and Steel Institute created a committee, to standardise iron and steel sections for bridges, railways and shipping.

The committee succeeded in cutting the production of different tram rails from 75 down to 5. This saved the industry about £1 million a year!

By 1929, the committee became the British Engineering Standards Association and was granted a Royal Charter, which defined the Association's objectives. A year later the Association became the British Standards Institution (BSI).

Today, more than a 100 years after the British Engineering Standards Association first met, BSI has 4,900 employees world-wide, operations in over 110 countries, and there are over 20,000 current British Standards.
